(At Dora's house)

Jason: How was your trip to France?

Dora: Wonderful! I visited the Louvre, one of the world's largest museums.

Jason: Did you know there's another Louvre in the city of Lens, just two hours by car from Paris?

Dora: Yes, but I just stayed in Paris. Maybe next time.

Jason: I see. So are these the photos you took in France?

Dora: Right. I'm picking a photo for my foreign pen friend, but I just can't decide which is the best.

Jason: Let me see . . . How about this one?

Dora: Why do you like it?

Jason: Don't you think you look more beautiful in it? We all look better with our left side facing the camera.

Dora: How so?

Jason: A book I just read says that the left side of our faces works harder than the right side when we cry or laugh. That's why it is always our best side.

Dora: And that's why Leonardo da Vinci painted Mona Lisa that way!

20. What do we know about Dora?

- (A) She went to France with Jason.
- (B) She visited the Louvre in Lens.
- (C) She is not good at taking pictures.

Let the words speak!

Fay: I was worried though this was my second time moving. But great job again! With your help, my move to the south of the country was great. And I saved 10% for moving with you again!

Susan: You were very friendly to me although I was just getting information for my sister. I was surprised that you helped people move somewhere as far as Botswana. Some people don't even know it's a country! Anyone would choose you just like my sister did.

Joe: When my family planned to move to Fiji, you were our only hope because all the others only sent things to countries near Taiwan. I was also very happy with your price. Your workers packed my things carefully. Everything arrived safely. Thank you!

Gary: Our office had to move across the country in a day, and I thought this was not possible. But you did it! You only charged us a little more for moving in such a short time. And you were serious about each of my phone calls. You're surely the best on the market.

A fan of Last Autumn? Then, you don't want to miss Highland Castle, where the movie was made. Walking in the castle, you'll feel like you are being taken back to those famous scenes – the back garden where Sir William and his future wife Lady Mary had their first kiss, the drawing room where Lady Mary lay in Sir William's arms for the last time and never opened her eyes again. . . .

A true story of Sir Anthony Airyman (1758 – 1801), Last Autumn shows the happy days of his life in Highland Castle. Built in 1625, the castle was all Sir Anthony had after his wife, Lady Helen, was gone. It was kept as it had been to remember their life there until a fire burned down half of it.

Sir Anthony died soon after, and the castle was passed down in the family until his great-great-grandson, Lewis Airyman, sold it to an American businessman, Charles Bass.

Now, thanks to the big ticket sales of Last Autumn, Highland Castle has got back its old-time shine and will be opened for visits for the first time. On July 5, 2020, actors from Last Autumn will be there for the opening. Join us!

In 1971, Sophia found a bottle on the beach. There was a letter in the bottle.

June 6, 1970

Dear Mason,

You didn't show up that Friday when I waited at your school gate as usual. You've been lost to me since. Everyone's been telling me fifteen years is enough and that it's time to let you go.

But I know you are somewhere in this world. I just haven't found out where you are. I'll keep looking for you, even though it may take another 15 years. I will never give up. I believe we'll see each other again someday.

Love,
Dad

After reading the letter, Sophia felt sad for the father and wanted to find him. With very few clues to start with, Sophia worked hard for years to learn what had happened. However, she could not put the broken pieces together to get a clear picture. Six years later, Sophia decided to write about the whole story of looking for the father. Her book came out in 1977, and, to her surprise, it sold thousands of copies.

30. Many people called soon after Sophia's book came out. Which call is most likely true?

- (A) "I'm Judy, Mason's aunt. Sorry to tell you that Noah, Mason's father, died yesterday. As a father who had lost his son for over twenty years, Noah wanted to thank you for making sure that Mason was not forgotten . . . ."
- (B) "I'm Mason's father. Thanks to your book, Mason finally came home. He has grown into a teenager. I can't believe I can have Mason back after years of . . . ."
- (C) "This is Mason calling. Thanks for everything. A bad guy took me away from our house fifteen years ago. A nice woman saved me, but I was too little to tell her where my home was . . . ."
- (D) "I'm Adam, Mason's best friend. We both celebrated our fiftieth birthday this week. I wanted to tell you that in fact, we ran away together at the age of fifteen to see the big world. Now we own a factory . . . ."

(31-34)

When you first meet Meggie, you may think she's strange. She often tells people which word "tastes" good and who has a "delicious" name. But she's not crazy. She has synesthesia, something only one in 2,000 people has.

People who have synesthesia experience the world differently. For some people, different words "taste" differently, for some, numbers or letters have colors, and for some, music "touches" parts of their bodies. Many of them experience more than one kind of synesthesia, while some have just one, like Meggie.

Each of them has their individual experience – two people with synesthesia may both "feel" music, but they almost never feel the music in the same way. For example, one may feel the music of the violin lightly brushing his face; the other may feel it on her ankle. And one's experience of synesthesia is always the same. If they see the number 5 in the color blue, then 5 is blue every time they see it.

There's one thing about synesthesia: it can't be "turned off." If you have synesthesia, you'll experience it all the time. Meggie once met a guy and his name made her think of the taste of bad eggs. He was a fun guy, but after thinking about his name all night, she felt too sick to be friends with him. Even so, she still likes this "gift" because that's what makes her different.

31. What is the reading mostly about?
- (A) Why people have synesthesia.                      (B) What it is like to have synesthesia.
(C) What kinds of synesthesia there are.            (D) How to help people with synesthesia.
32. What does it mean when someone has their individual experience?
- (A) Their experience is helpful to them.
(B) Their experience is different from others'.
(C) Their experience stays in their mind for a long time.
(D) Their experience changes their way of seeing the world.
33. What do we know about people with synesthesia from the reading?
- (A) There are no more than 2,000 of them in the world.
(B) Few of them have more than one kind of synesthesia.
(C) Their experience of synesthesia does not change with time.
(D) They can choose when to have the experience of synesthesia.
34. Which sentence may Meggie say when she tells you about her experience of synesthesia?
- (A) "The name Laura is in bright purple."
(B) "The sound of drums touches my back."
(C) "The word zero tastes like a green apple."
(D) "The taste of fish appears as a green cloud."

Hi! Andy,

How are you? Guess where I am now? In one of the lowest places in the world! After a two-day bus ride and a one-day walk from Tausa, I finally 35 here. The weather here was so hot that I drank up most of the water I brought. I was worried that there 36 no more water. Luckily, I found a small town that 37 here for hundreds of years and got help from some friendly people. You know, the most difficult part of this trip was that I had to find my own way and take care of different problems by myself. I was a little afraid before the trip, but now I'm having a good time. Let's have coffee together after I get back. 38 you more about my trip.

Love,
Diana

The earth is getting warmer with more and more greenhouse gases in the atmosphere. To better understand how greenhouse gases heat up our earth, we should first know 39. A greenhouse is a special house made of glass for plants. It holds the heat of the sun so that the plants inside can grow better. Some gases in the atmosphere work like a greenhouse and can keep the heat of the sun, so we call them greenhouse gases. Greenhouse gases help our earth stay warm enough for animals and plants. In fact, 40.

There is, however, a big problem. More greenhouse gases than our earth needs are entering the atmosphere because of the way we live. 41, with a great number of cars, there is too much CO<sub>2</sub>, a common greenhouse gas, and farm animals give off a lot of CH<sub>4</sub>, another greenhouse gas. If we want to “cool down” our earth, a good start is to change our way of life, like driving less and eating less meat.
